Q: Is angular asio in cloud function only available in a single domain or can it be used across multiple domains? I am able to get access to the callback functions in my cloud function using: `const getCurrentUser = async function(req, res) { const user = await User.findOne({ where: { provider: req.body.provider } }); res.status(200).send(user); };` However, I am having a hard time getting it to return across two domains. The documentation for the callback functions (for example, `onUpdate`) have an example using IP: Is it possible to set up IP access control using Angular and Cloud Functions? A: Cloud Functions only works in a single environment and one request at a time. If you want to restrict access to Cloud Function code across multiple domains, you'll need to do it server side.

Q: What would a question be about if you were already familiar with the world you're trying to research? A few times, I've felt very compelled to ask a question, only to discover that I'm already familiar with at least some of the subject area. I then find that asking a question about the subject would be a better choice, since I can explain exactly what I'm looking for. I have a few different times when this has happened, but this is the most recent example: I'm a bit in a bind. I'm kind of a dilettante with computer science, so I know a few small bits here and there. I'm working on a class project right now which is fairly popular (at least by my school) because it's the first year they're doing artificial neural networks, which is a relatively new topic. I had an idea for a class project, so I wanted to see what I could come up with. The topic that I've been looking into is least-squares fitting, and I wanted to do a single variable regression. My question is: What would be a good starting question? I know the basics, but I don't have a clue what topics should I explore. Can you give me any advice on what would be a good starting question? A:

BlazeSky is an epic sci-fi action RPG that puts you on a journey to fight the nefarious Choruzuru overlord and his Cyborg army from the far reaches of space. Take to the stars and become an independent space pilot. Play the greatest space-based action RPG around. 5.0 (19 ratings) Posted by IsenseiAug 10, 2018 What can I say? No update since launch, then on July 27th the creators seem to drop out and say "then I didn't feel like updating anymore" and the dev team is obviously lost and the project abandoned. I love space games and I've wanted to purchase the game and get involved in a community of indie developers before this happens. Now I guess I'll have to wait until another game is released. WowAug 16, 2018 (19 ratings) Posted by GameSupportAug 13, 2018 I'm not sure which statement is more scary. The fact that you don't give two shits about your game nor your community or that the dev team is letting down the community, the community that spent money on your dev team to pay to play the game. Oh goodieAug 24, 2018 (19 ratings) Posted by James GardnerAug 22, 2018 What is the point in making a game with absolutely NO art? As a huge space games fan I'll not pay for the game seeing as it's utter trash. I hope this game gets repurchased and finished up. What you've been doing for the last 3 years has been terrible and you've let the community down. Take a break, clean your PC and regroup. What kind of an update does this deserve? 7

NiceOct 4, 2018 (19 ratings) Posted by A.I.Oct 13, 2018 I've been a space game fan since Wing Commander 2 and this is probably the best space game I've played since that one. The story and gameplay were absolutely excellent and the developers did a fantastic job at making the world of BlazeSky rich, varied and believable. The presentation is absolutely stunning, the music is phenomenal and the voice acting is top notch. The gameplay is easy enough for a new space game player to understand and is very fun to play. I love this game. Wait! I'm not done yet! The soundtrack
